uPVC Double Glazed Magnaline™ Doors

The Magnaline™ system can be used on door configurations of two or more panels. The primary design will have a swing door on one end and a series of panels beside it. Upon opening the swing door, a space is created for the next panel over to slide. When the panel slides into place beside the open swing door, the panel itself converts to a swing door. Each panel in turn does the same. This all happens on a single track that supports the full weight of the door from beneath.

If you look closely you will notice something missing on Magnaline™ powered doors...hinges! That's right, with Magnaline™ you can have a folding door without bulky hinges between each panel.

This means more flexibility in operation, easier installation, and a cleaner sleeker design that enhances every room.
